Anne's House Of Dreams

Lucy Maud Montgomery Short Stories, 1896 to 1901

An affecting biography of the author of Anne of Green Gables is the first for young readers to include revelations about her last days and to encompass the complexity of a brilliant and sometimes troubled life. Once upon a time, there was a girl named Maud who adored stories. When she was fourteen years old, Maud wrote in her journal, "I love books. I hope when I grow up to be able to have lots of them." Not only did Maud grow up to own lots of books, she wrote twenty-four of them herself as L. M. Montgomery, the world-renowned author of Anne of Green Gables. For many years, not a great deal was known about Maud's personal life. Her childhood was spent with strict, undemonstrative grandparents, and her reflections on writing, her lifelong struggles with anxiety and depression, her "year of mad passion," and her difficult married life remained locked away, buried deep within her unpublished personal journals. Through this revealing and deeply moving biography, kindred spirits of all ages who, like Maud, never gave up "the substance of things hoped for" will be captivated anew by the words of this remarkable woman.

Dreaming of Daffodils

From Paige Pierce, the author of poetry anthologies "Coloured Ink" and "A Lifetime Is Seven Days", comes "Dreaming of Daffodils", a collection of poetry and prose detailing the different states of consciousness and how they connect to human emotion.

Sense and Sensibility

A homeless young woman finds an unexpected family in beloved New York Times bestselling author Carolyn Brown's novel of healing hearts and new beginnings in a small Texas town. In the fading town of Rooster, Texas, all that's really left is a service station, a church and the Banty House, a long-ago Depression-era brothel. For more than seventy-five years, Betsy, Connie, and Kate Carson have called their mama's house a home. The three eccentric sisters get by just fine with their homemade jams and jellies, a little moonshine on the side, and big hearts always open to strangers. Like Ginger Andrews. An abandoned teen with a baby on the way and nowhere to go, she's given a room to call her own for as long as she wants. The kind invitation is made all the sweeter when Ginger meets the sisters' young handyman, Sloan Baker. But with a past as broken as Ginger's, he's vowed never to get close to anyone again. As a season of change unfolds, Ginger and Sloan might discover a warm haven to heal in the Banty House, a place to finally belong, where hope and dreams never fade.

Dunces Anonymous

Adultery, illegitimacy, misogyny, revenge, murder, despair, bitterness, hatred, and death—usually not the first terms associated with L.M. Montgomery. But in The Blythes Are Quoted, completed shortly before her death and never before published in its entirety, Montgomery brought these topics to the forefront in what she intended to be the ninth volume in her bestselling series featuring her beloved heroine Anne. Divided into two sections, one set before and one after the Great War of 1914—1918, The Blythes Are Quoted contains fifteen episodes that include an adult Anne and her family. Binding these short stories, Montgomery inserted sketches featuring Anne and Gilbert Blythe discussing poems by Anne and their middle son, Walter, who dies as a soldier in the war. By blending poetry, prose, and dialogue, Montgomery was experimenting with storytelling methods in ways she had never before attempted. The Blythes Are Quoted marks the final word of a writer whose work continues to fascinate readers all over the world.

Kilmeny of the Orchard

Anne's House of Dreams by L. M. Montgomery "Anne's House of Dreams" by L. M. Montgomery is the continuing story of Anne Shirley Blythe who lived in Green Gables. This book is the fifth in the "Anne of Green Gables" series. In this episode, Anne is twenty-five years old and is preparing for her wedding. She will marry the young Gilbert Blythe, a promising doctor. They will be moving from Green Gables to Four Winds, a sleepy seaside community in Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia. Anne, tall, slim, and with flaming hair, has been a teacher for three years at a school called Summerside. Gilbert Blythe has been after Anne for years and will finally make her his. After a small ceremony with family and close friends, the couple takes off from Green Gables to become their new life together. Anne can't wait to get to the house where they will start. Gilbert doesn't want her to expect too much. The house is old and small and they will only rent it. But Anne is not dissuaded from believing that the house will be her dream home especially when Gilbert tells her about the grounds around the house. It has many large old trees and a stream running through the property. And there are gardens that the previous owners cultivated. Anne gave up on a honeymoon. For her, the best honeymoon she can think of is being with Gilbert in their new residence. Anne is not disappointed with her house. She enthusiastically decorates the interior and works diligently on the flower gardens outside. She loves to walk in the gardens and to the beach on the harbor. The region is more beautiful than she had imagined. Anne gets to know some of the locals and forms strong and lasting friendships with them. There is Captain Jim who manages the lighthouse. He's an old tar who entertains everyone with tales of his adventures on the sea. Jim is a sensitive and caring older man and feels an immediate affinity for Anne. To say that Miss Cornelia Bryant is an opinionated woman would be a conservative statement. She's a proud Presbyterian who hates Methodists and doesn't hesitate to tell anyone within earshot. She is also a Conservative Conservative and despises the Liberals. And she feels that men will be the downfall of civilization. There is only a handful of men she can tolerate. Cornelia has two favorite forms of recreation: sewing and reading obituaries. But despite all her bluster, Cornelia has a good heart and really wants the best for people. Leslie Moore becomes Anne's best friend at Four Winds. Leslie is the most beautiful girl Anne has ever seen. In fact, she is the most beautiful girl

most people have ever seen. She is in an unusual and loveless marriage, but cannot escape it. She has a history of tragedy in her life and sees no hope for the future. Anne supports Leslie and tries to cheer up whenever possible. However, in a surprising twist of the story, a whole new world finally opens up for Leslie. It's a world filled with promises of hope, love, and romance. Anne associates good and bad memories with her dream house. Despite everything, she loves her little house and never wants to leave again. But just when things are perfect, this is where they change. After having a son, Gilbert hears about a large house for sale and wants to buy it. Anne is resistant to change and goes through a lot of pain, finally coming to the conclusion that it is time to move on. But Anne will never let go of the memories she created in her dream home and she will always have a special place in her heart.

Since then, she's lost her mother to cancer and watched her sister marry twice, while Chelsea's thrown herself into work, becoming one of the most talented fundraisers for the American Cancer Coalition, and with the exception of one annoyingly competent coworker, Jason Knightley, her status as most successful moneymaker is unquestioned. When her introverted mathematician father announces he's getting remarried, Chelsea is forced to acknowledge that her life stopped after her mother died and that the last time she can remember being happy, in love, or enjoying her life was on her year abroad. Inspired to retrace her steps—to find Colin in Ireland, Jean Claude in France, and Marcelino in Italy—Chelsea hopes that one of these three men who stole her heart so many years ago can help her find it again. From the start of her journey nothing goes as planned, but as Chelsea reconnects with her old self, she also finds love in the very last place she expected.
